

Gray Cemetery

(AEC #55)

GPS Coordinates: N36°01.873' W084°12.231'

Size 3 graves

Location: This cemetery has not been located. It isn't on a tract map, but is described as being on the north side of Emory Valley Road, 1,000 feet west of River Road, near the intersection of "old road F-81". This may be the cemetery that is reported to be in the vicinity of Balboa Circle. On Tract D-367, from Harvey Gray.

2012 Update: Location: This cemetery is located on private property between 105 and 107 Balboa Circle. Although not identified on a tract map it is identified on the U. S. Engineer Office, Manhattan District Index of Road Map Status of Construction (Cemetery) Drawing revised 1943/1945. This map identifies the cemetery as the Gray cemetery, #55, which can be cross referenced to the Gray D-367 tract map. Additionally, some of the original deteriorated wooden fence posts possibly installed by the U. S. Army still stand today encircling this small cemetery.

(Updated information, GPS Coordinates, burial records and photo are from Mr. Dennis Eggert and Mr. Fred Eiler.)

Burial Records

Possibly at least three burials

Last Name	First Name	Middle Name	Birth Date	Death Date	Family
Leath	James		1872	1915
Leath	Zettie		1878	1919
Unmarked

Note: James Leath was killed in a railroad accident in Oliver Springs, Tennessee